

The Gladie Cabin was built in the 1870s by the Ledford family. Over the years it has served as a family dwelling, a boarding house, and a post office. It tells a story of Kentucky's rich history in logging.